ACAYA GOLF CLUB

In a natural setting and unique landscape for its beauty and integrity, in the midst of the maquis and ancient olive trees, you will find the Acaya Golf Resort & SPA course, designed by the renowned American firm Hurdzan and Fry. The 18-hole par 71 course is 6,192 metres long and offers a wide variety of design, constantly searching for perfect harmony between the natural features of the land and how the shots are to be played. It therefore requires players to use all fourteen irons and woods in their bag. The fairway grass, using a strong, dense American Bermuda grass seed, guarantees that the ball will float extremely well along the surface for shots that are always sharp and clean. On the sides, a mixture of four types of fescue ripples at natural height. For the greens, two varieties, A4 and A1, of agrostis stolonifera palustris have been used: a composition that has about twice the number of stems in the grass than conventional Penncross.

ACAYA AND SURROUNDINGS

AMONG OLIVE TREES

7KM FAR FROM LECCE

Nestled in one hundred and twenty acres of Mediterranean vegetation, Acaya Golf Resort & SPA is located at the centre of a cross-section of enchanting Salento, a few kilometres from the decorated stonework of Lecce, an expression of the artistic and architectural movement known as Lecce Baroque. The ancient art is echoed about ten minutes' drive from the resort, located next to the WWF oasis called Le Cesine, a national Nature Reserve, and between the countryside of Vernole and Acaya, facing the belt of sea that encircles the peninsula, a harmonious competition of waves between the Adriatic and Ionian Seas.

LECCE, OTRANTO, SANTA MARIA DI LEUCA

It is because of the famous "Lecce stone", the malleable rock with which the Salento area abounds, that the baroque style spread through Salento. The ultimate expression of this movement is the city of Lecce, the "Capital of Baroque". Churches, cathedrals, ancient buildings are real open-air monuments here.

OUR EXTRAORDINARY SEA

On the Adriatic and Ionian Seas, there are countless rocky and sandy beaches not to miss in Salento. Some suggestions to get to know the place better, getting lost along the fascinating and endless stretches of coastline of this wonderful land. Porto Cesareo, on the Ionian Sea, is famous for its blue sea, ancient towers and fresh fish restaurants. Gallipoli, on the Ionian coast, is known for its charming old villages, Caribbean-like sea and sophistication. Otranto, on the Adriatic, is famous for its ramparts, beaches with fine silvery sand, lakes and green pine forest. On the Adriatic and on the Ionian Sea, Santa Cesarea Terme is famous for its healing thermal waters and its sulphur caves, while Castro is known for its caves, including Zinzulusa cave, which is one of the largest karst phenomena of Salento. Santa Maria di Leuca, at the extreme edge of Puglia, is known as "Finibus Terrae"; the sea is crystal clear and the coastline dotted with numerous coves and caves, including the Cave of the Three Doors, the Devil's Cave and the Cave of the Breath, which are accessible only by sea. Il Ciolo, a short walk from Santa Maria di Leuca, is famous for its 40-metre high bridge, from which some daring souls dive into the emerald green sea.

TYPICAL CUISINE & EVENTS

In summer, festivals are the food and wine events par excellence, especially for locals. Find out about all the festivals that will be held while you are on holiday in Salento. For breakfast, don't miss an iced coffee with pastries at the Pasticceria Alvino in Lecce, to be enjoyed slowly, nobody is in a hurry here... The ideal lunch is a fresh and light frisella accompanied by Dreher beer at Ultima Spiaggia. For dinner, try the elegant dishes at the Bastioni in Gallipoli, or a simple spaghetti with sea urchins at the Scapricciatiello. At night time, head for the exclusive Gibò at Gagliano del Capo or the Malé at Santa Cesarea Terme.
